The Deal and play are counter-clockwise; the cards are counted in groups of 3.

Three Player

Deal

Deal 8 cards to each player, 6 to the Talon, and 8 more to each player.

Bids

Bid	Value	Simplified Value	Description
Trischaken	30¢	1	Take as few points as possible.
Single	30¢	1	Exchange three cards, and take over half the points (36+).
Double	40¢	2
Triple	50¢	3
Quadruple	60¢
Quintuple	70¢
Solo	$1.20	4	Leave the Talon unseen, and take over half the points.
Solo-Slam	$9.60	32	Leave the Talon unseen, and take every trick.

Bidding is one round, with priority. Bids of Double to Quintuple may only be used to outbid the previous bid on the table; anyone may jump to Solo at any time. If someone wins the bid with a Single, he may, if he chooses, declare Trischaken; if all pass Trischaken is played.

Eldest leads to the first trick.

Trischaken

Trischaken is a negative game where everyone plays for himself, and the goal is not to take points. [The Talon is unused, and does not contribute to anyone's score.] There are no bonuses.

Underplay is permitted; there is no need to head the trick. The only difference from usual play is that the Pagat must be played as one's last trump.

The player who takes the most points has lost, and pays 30¢. If one person takes no points, he is payed the value by the other two. If all three tie, there is no payment.

Single, Double, Triple, Quadruple, and Quintuple

The six cards of the Talon are exposed in two groups of three. The declarer may take either set and add them to his hand, the remaining three cards counting toward his opponents. He then discards three cards which will count for him in the end. They may not be Kings or Trull cards, and may only be trumps if necessary not to discard Kings.

Solo

All as in a Single, except that the Talon cards count for the opponents, unseen, and all bonuses are doubled.

Announcements

Birds, or Slam may be announced to double their value won or lost; an announced bonus or the Game may be Doubled as well. All bonuses are doubled in a Solo.

Besides the Game, the following bonuses are scored.
